

INQUADE SENT TO THE TOMBS

SEVEN JURORS SELECTED ON THE FIRST DAY OF HIS TRIAL.

Tracy's Predecessor Challenged in Recorder's Court—The Trial of Arthur J. McQuade and His Wife Takes Things Very Comfortably.

On Nov. 12, the trial of Arthur J. McQuade and his wife for the murder of William H. Kierman, Jr., began at 11 o'clock yesterday morning before Recorder Smith in the Court of General Sessions. This is the first time McQuade has been committed to prison since his arrest, and he will remain behind bars, except for the time he passes in court, until he leaves the court room a free man or as he served such a sentence as a verdict of guilty may bring upon him.

He looked contented and happy as he entered the court room yesterday morning. His brother Bernard came in with him, and his counsel, Gen. B. F. Tracy, Richard S. Newcomb, and A. H. Hammett, were already in their places, just without the railing before the bench. He greeted them cordially, and sat down beside Gen. Tracy, having for his left neighbor ex-Justice McQuade, who does not happen to be in any way related to the ex-Alderman.

On Gen. Tracy's right and between him and Mr. Newcomb was the dead Methodist belle, Frances McQuade, the victim, who was killed by a bullet from the right breast of her friend, Mr. Newcomb, and not because he knew anything about the disappearance of the $400,000 bond. Within the railing sat Detective Arthur Martin and his assistant, Detective Nicolci. Col. Fellows now joined the forces for the prosecution. The jury was picked as it was yesterday, and the jurymen or persons having immediate business with the court, unless permitted to be present, were exceptions to the rule.

It was 10:10 when the jury took their seats on the bench. He looked stern and frosty, and at once began dealing out sentences to the two and a half hours, to a number of convicts. The first called to the bar was Margaret Minor, who with her husband and a small child, a minor, heard her sentence of one year in the penitentiary and a fine of $100, for having been in a house of ill repute.

It took forty minutes to clear the decks of the trial, and at 11:10 the jury was called. Then the case of the people, Arthur J. McQuade, was called, and almost immediately the examination of the witnesses began. Mrs. McQuade, the wife of the indicted Ad-man, had in the mean time moved down from her apartment to the hotel where the trial was held, and she was seated in the rear of the room and took a chair in the front row of the gallery. She was a woman with a pale face, dark eyes, and a small, dark, curly head, who during all the preliminary formalities had not seemed to care and laugh with the crowd about her.

Her husband, a leather dealer of 83 Broadway, was called to the stand, and he was asked to read the indictment against him. He is a neat-looking little man, with black side whiskers and moustache, and he answered the questions of the jury with a calm and collected manner. # BASE BALL RULES

Meeting of League and Association Representatives to Revise Them.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—This morning a joint committee of the Base Ball League and American Association met at the Tremont House to arrange a set of playing rules to be mutually agreeable to both organizations, and thus do away with the two systems now in vogue. The League is represented by President Day of New York and President Rogers of Philadelphia, and the Association by O. P. Taylor of Cincinnati, Zach Phelps of Louisville, and William Barnie of Baltimore.

In place of the stone at home plate, a base similar in size, but of white rubber, was recommended. The position of first and third bases was moved seven and a half inches, so that the base would be inside the foul lines, thereby helping the umpire in deciding whether a ball fell in fair or foul ground. The new rules of the American Association concerning the position of the bases were also recommended. They require that the catcher shall not be nearer than sixty-five feet to the home plate, and that the pitcher shall not be nearer than fifteen feet to the home plate. The new rules also provide that the pitcher shall not be nearer than fifteen feet to the home plate.

RIOT IN THE COAL REGION.

Hungry and Poles Engaged in a Free Fight—Men Brought Wounded with Pistol Shots.

SHEPHERD, Nov. 15.—A sanguinary riot occurred at Shepherd, near this place, last night. About twenty Hungarians and Poles engaged in a free fight, in which clubs, stones, and axes were used. The house in which the fight started was completely wrecked, and in less than fifteen minutes after the fight began forty men and women were in the street engaged in a free hand-to-hand conflict. The rough police force, to the number of six, attempted to quell the disturbance, but their appearance on the scene enraged the rioters, who drew their revolvers and began to shoot indiscriminately. Policemen Dwyer, who was shot in the head, and Joseph Brown, a Pole, received a ball in the head, and were subsequently picked up in a dying condition. Two other Poles were injured, one of them being shot through the nose and the other through the arm.

The riot was suppressed it was found that, besides the four men who were shot, six other men were injured, and a woman was killed.
